BEFORE THE RING. A little luck, a common interest, and a friendly hand brought Marie Finan and Doug Wall together. Though the pair were both undergraduate students pursuing history degrees at Lafayette College, they did not meet until their senior year in a mandatory seminar course. Sitting with a mutual friend in the classroom, Marie and Doug slowly got to know one another, as lingering looks over the books led to an introduction. Study buddies turned into lovebirds, and the college sweethearts found everlasting love.

THE PROPOSAL. Returning from a typical day at the office, Marie was welcomed home with a sweet surprise. Waiting patiently with gentlemanly grandeur, Doug stood on her doorstep with a bottle of champagne and a lovely engagement ring in a true-blue Tiffany box. Completely ecstatic and blissfully happy, the pair celebrated with a night out on the town. Doug treated his bride-to-be to a celebratory dinner at The House, an unabashedly romantic restaurant in New York City, to complete their perfect evening.

THE DAY & DESIGN. After a heartfelt church ceremony, the newlyweds and their loved ones proceeded back to Doug's family home for an evening of enchantment. Inspired by the estate's lush backyard, Marie and Doug chose a rose-garden theme for their essence-of-summer celebration. A creamy color palette of petal pinks and ivory complemented the seasonal blooms, while pops of pewter gray added a sophisticated note to the feminine scheme. Guests enjoyed sweet sips beneath the breathtaking canopies, then proceeded to the tennis court-turned-tented ballroom for a fabulous feast. Handwritten place cards, engraved with a refined rose monogram, topped the tables, and crystal chandeliers sparkled overhead. The couple completed the elegant soiree with a funky finish, transforming the pool into a plexi-glass dance floor that glowed brilliant blue.
